Australian Labour and Employment Relations Association

The Australian Labour and Employment Relations Association Incorporated (ALERA) formerly the Industrial Relations Society of Australia (IRSA) is an independent, non-partisan association which encourages discussion and debate on a wide range of issues affecting employment and was the first organisation of its type to be formed in Australia.

ALERA'S OBJECTIVE

ALERA's objective is to organise and foster discussion, research, education and publication within the field of industrial and workplace relations. ALERA is governed by an Executive Committee made up of representatives from the affiliated States and Territory bodies.

ALERA publishes the Journal of Industrial Relations and holds a number of national events including a bi-annual national conference.

ALERA AFFILIATES

Each State and Territory body holds a variety of networking and professional development events during the year. These bodies welcome as members anyone involved in, studying or interested in, industrial relations, human resources, labour relations or employment relations. To join your local ALERA affiliated State or Territory body visit the relevant website or contact the membership officer listed below.
